Processa's Chief Executive Officer, Dr. David Young commented, "As we rapidly approach multiple potential catalysts in our drug development pipeline, anticipated in upcoming months, we are looking forward to participating at these investor conferences. Beyond these conferences, we are also excited to soon embark on multiple non-deal roadshows with what we view as respected investment firms."

Dr. Young continued, "During our teams successful last venture together which resulted in a sale of the company for approximately $5.6B, we learned the fundamental importance of managing both the public side of our business, in conjunction with operations side. We understand that being proactive with our corporate communications is critical towards building shareholder goodwill and value. It's for this reason that you may expect to see us being more proactive on these fronts, not limited to a soon social media presence. As shareholders ourselves, it's important to both our management and board that shareholders know that our goals are directly aligned."
